Richard Arghiris first visited Latin America in 2003, when he travelled between the capitals of Mexico and PanamÃ¡. Richard has since become a regular visitor to the Americas, writing and researching content for guidebooks, magazines, newspapers and websites. Aside from Latin America, he has travelled widely in Europe and the United States, and is currently based in London where he works as an author and freelance journalist and is on the road whenever it calls.

I lived in Honduras in 2007 and traveled quite a bit. I purchased this book for my next visit there because it was the most up to date book available and I thought it would be enough to help us get around. I was disappointed in the maps and lack of information. Maybe I expected too much from a book that will fit in your back pocket. I ended up buying the Moon guide and it will be much more helpful for my travels.
