"Since the inception of Nouthetic Counseling, those associated with the movement have recognized the importance of working together with physicians. In James 5, the elders of the church are directed to call upon God in prayer, to confess sins (when necessary), and to use medicine to heal the sick. Because this has been our firm and continuing position, we have always been concerned not to counsel persons whose problems might possibly stem from organic causes as if they did not. But to distinguish between the two causes is often difficult since, in some cases, similar symptoms may arise from both organic and non-organic sources. The difficulty, though not totally alleviated, has now been greatly reduced by the publication of Dr. Robert Smith's ground-breaking book, The Christian Counselor's Medical Desk Reference. Pastors, elders, and counselors everywhere will be delighted to obtain this volume."

Dr. Smith has produced an excellent reasonably balanced survey of "mental illness" diagnosis with appropriate biblical response to aid in caring for believers. Everything biblical counseling should read and refer to it often.

Pastors are not (usually) physicians. That being said, it is helpful to have a general idea of the symptoms and progression of common conditions (especially those considered psychiatric). Dr. Bob, a physician and nouthetic counselor for over 30 years, is still teaching excellent courses on counseling, especially dealing with medical issues and uncommon situations. The biggest help in this book is the suggestions he gives for counseling someone who is facing these problems. This is not a diagnostic tool (as a diagnosis should only be done by trained medical personnel, not pastors/counselors), but a tool to help the counselee deal with the situation and increase the understanding of the condition for the counselor.
